Expected that Testimony Will Be Completed Tonight and Bond Damage Case Go to Jury Monday Night

GORE AS WITNESS DRAWS BIG CROWD

Sensor is to Be Last Principal Witness—Secretary Ministerial Alliance Testifies—Robertson Again Recalled

Telegram by United Press.

Oklahoma City, Feb. 14.—The announcement that Senator Gore would be the last principal witness in Mrs. Bond's suit attracted an unusual crowd to the court room today.

All evidence is expected to be in by tonight. One day will be required for arguments and the case should go to the jury Monday night.

Rev. Licklider of the Offret Baptist church, secretary of the Ministerial Alliance, testified today that Mrs. Bond and James Jacobs submitted a statement concerning the affair to the alliance but the committee which was appointed to investigate it reported that the matter was not within the province of the alliance.

Pressed closely, Licklider admitted that Mrs. Bond, "strictly speaking," was not a member of the church "in good standing." She had been inactive for two years, but her name was still on the rolls.

T. E. Robertson, recalled to the witness stand, denied that he told Attorney Fisher that they framed up a rape case on Gore and would either collect $25,000 or put him out of the senatorial race.

United States Marshall Newell's testimony greatly strengthened the defense's case. He said Dr. J. H. Earp, a strong plaintiff witness came to him here in April, 1912, with a clipping from an Indianapolis newspaper bearing the printed story of the Bond-Gore episode, and that Earp said, "That's all a damn lie. I never talked with Gore about that. That's some of Jacob's work; he cooked that up."

The newspaper story declared and Earp testified Thursday, that Gore told him the morning after the alleged assault, speaking of Mrs. Bond, that he "loved her up a little but was mistaken in the woman, and that she fought like a hyena."

Gore had not been called at the noon recess but no other important defense witnesses remained. Gore will denounce the suit as a frame-up.

Smith Chambers, editor of the Tonkawa "Chieftain," and at present postmaster at Tonkawa, testified in Gore's behalf and said that he was in Washington, March 24, at the time of the alleged assault upon Mrs. Bond, and was present during many conversations participated in by Jacobs, Fitzpatrick and Robertson. Witness said that he was in Washington at the time looking after his application for the Tonkawa postoffice and was present at a conference when Robertson had a bundle of letters and said that if the United States senate, the attorney general and the district attorney failed to take up the Gore charges, that the matter could be laid before the women's organizations of Oklahoma City. Witness quoted McMurray as saying that he knew several women in Washington who might take up the matter.

On cross examination Chambers said he obtained his appointment in August and that he went to Washington with the endorsements of his county central committee, congressional committee, the state committee and members of the supreme court. Witness said that he did not attribute his appointment to Senator Gore's influence so much as he did to the endorsements. According to Chambers' statements he met Jacobs on the street in Washington after the Bond-Gore incident and asked of Jacobs, "how did all three of you of you come to be up there in the hotel at the same time?" and that Jacobs replied, "it was a frame-up."

CRISIS ON SHOWS IS EXPECTED

The crisis in the war on the Sunday opening of the movies is expected tomorrow and future events will depend upon whether or not the shows open their doors for business tomorrow.

Both the theater managers and the county attorney's office are standing pat. The theater managers have signified that they will give shows tomorrow afternoon and night, and Oscar Simpson, county attorney, has stated that, in such an event, arrests will follow and the case will be tested.

"I want it understood that in the event the shows open, managers, operators, ticket takers, ushers and everybody connected with the business will be arrested," said Mr. Simpson.

Minneapolis, Feb. 14.—Joseph Bay-erle, foreman in the Levin Brothers' upholstery plant, was shot twice by two gunmen in an automobile as he boarded a street car to go to work. The plant was made an open shop the first of the year and a number of men walked out. The place was picketed and ill feeling existed.

Her it was a frame-up. He said he thought the case was so flimsy it would never come to trial.

"How did you know it was a frame-up?" asked counsel for Mrs. Bond. "Because they told me it was," replied the witness who excused his conduct of not apprising Gore immediately after the occurrence by saying that he did

Deputy James Dillon Runs Down Witness in Spite of Hoodoo—Wanted in White Slavery Case

Also, Friday, the 13th, has no terrors for Jas. Dillon, deputy United States marshal, and in addition to other humors, said to trail hoodoos around with them it is to the worthy marshal what the proverbial No. 13 is to Woodrow W. The case demonstrating this fact, however, is of a more serious nature.

There lived at Duncan a girl who was wanted by the federal authorities as a witness at Muskogee in a white slavery case. Having probably gotten wind of the impending possibilities, she left her home and went to El Reno. The federal authorities in the western district instructed Dillon to proceed at once to El Reno and serve a subpoena upon the girl. Thither yesterday, Friday 13, went Mr. Dillon, only to find that the wanted witness had left El Reno on February 3 for parts unknown.

Dillon was upon the point of returning to Chickasha when he happened to think of the date. He then reached a conclusion to proceed farther into the case and mindful of the fact that a rescue home existed near Oklahoma City, he boarded an interurban car and headed for Bethany station, five miles from Oklahoma City, a mile and a half from which is the Nazarene Rescue home. The car that carried him there was No. 23.

Arrived at his destination, he found the witness so much sought, served the subpoena for her appearance in Muskogee on February 20, and returned last night to Chickasha.

Yesterday morning Mr. Dillon returned from Muskogee, where he had gone with a party of federal prisoners. While there the federal marshal ordered a quartet of deputy marshals to Krebs, Okla., to raid four joints. Among the number were Deputy United States Marshals Dillon, Worley, Williams and Peters. Their venture resulted in the destruction of 1781 gallons of Choctaw beer in kegs, 1325 quart bottles of the same beverage and 14 gallons of wine, a fair day's work at that.

Maud Powell

"Bear a lily to thy hand,
"Gates of brass cannot withstand
"One touch of that magic wand."

No, Maud Powell doesn't bear a lily in her hand, but she has a magic bow and had the doors of her hearers' hearts been barred with gates of adamant they must have crumbled when the violinist with her magic bow drew from her marvelous box such melodies as the mythical Orpheus had forth to charm living creatures as well as trees and stones.

What's the use of trying to describe it—the thing can't be done, and if you were there you know it is utter foolishness to attempt it. If we were a real musical critic we would turn loose a lot of lingo about wonderful technique, interpretative power and the like, but it wouldn't signify anything, and as we haven't any knowledge of profound musical mysteries in our shop, we'll just reel it off as it impressed a layman.

Maud Powell, in her concert at the Suggs theater under the auspices of the Macdowell club last night, captivated her audience from the start. Her pleasing personality and unaffected manners were no less noticeable than her matchless art, and the recital was a triumph for the artist in the truest sense. She was equally at home in the magnificent Mendelssohn concerto, the opening number, and in the "Home, Sweet Home" which, in response to repeated encores, she played after it was time for the curtain to fall. We don't know which number you liked best, but Boisdore's "The Brook" got us and has us going yet. When Maud Powell is playing the artist and instrument are one and both speak the simple language of the highest art which all can understand.

Maud Powell's fame had preceded her to Chickasha and she disappointed no lover of the best in musical art. Her program was varied and she was very gracious in giving requested numbers.

The audience was one of the largest even seen in the Suggs and that they were appreciative was manifested by prolonged applause following every number. Mr. Francis Moore, pianist, assisting the celebrated violinist, came in for his share of applause, his part on the program proving very popular.

Chickasha people owe a debt of gratitude to the Macdowell club for giving them an opportunity to enjoy such a musical treat.

Joe Wheeler Camp No. 9, United Spanish War Veterans, met in regular session at city hall this week, with George Gattis, camp commander, presiding. A large amount of accumulated business was transacted and one new member was mustered into the camp and two new applications were received. Whereas, We believe that this bill is a most worthy measure, and deserves the support of all good citizens regardless of party affiliations. Therefore be it

POSTPONE HEARINGS

Circumstances caused the two preliminary hearings set for yesterday afternoon and today in Justice W. W. Clark's court, to flash in the pan, and it was necessary to set them for future dates.

On account of the continued illness of Bill Fillmore, the principal witness against Sam House, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, was continued from this morning to next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It was thought that by today Fillmore, who received the wound from the knife in the hands of House, would be in such physical condition that he could appear, but it was thought this morning that he was not in condition to proceed with the trial.

The preliminary hearing of J. A. McAlister, Arthur Stroud, Lester Taylor and Waymon Taylor, the quartet charged with having broken into the school house of Little Rock, was postponed from yesterday afternoon to next Friday afternoon, on account of one of the principal witnesses in the case being called to Texas by serious illness of a relative.

MISSING DAUGHTER IS SOUGHT

TRAIL FOUND IN VARIOUS PLACES

Applies for Work in Union City and Minco—Believed that Mind Wanders—Police Working on Case

That his daughter, Emmie Simmons, is wandering in or around Chickasha is the belief of W. J. Simmons of El Reno, who is here investigating the case and using every means in his power to locate his daughter, who ran away from her home in El Reno in January.

Mr. Simmons says she is going under the assumed name of Mable Layton, and when she left home she was wearing a blue dress, brown top coat, a white aviator cap and was carrying a small suit case. She is 16 years of age. Just why she left her home is a mystery to her father and he can account for it only by the fact that at times the girl's mind wanders, which condition has resulted from a severe attack of typhoid fever some eight months ago.

Apparently the girl left El Reno on foot, for she was without money, and between El Reno and Chickasha she has been seen several times. At Union City she called at a hotel and asked for work. The landlady informed her that she had nothing to offer, but volunteered to keep her at the hotel until such time as she could find work. This the girl refused to agree to, saying that she must have work immediately. She was given her supper, after which she left. Further south, near Minco, several places at which she called for work were found and the positive trail ends this side of Minco, where she was seen crossing a bridge.

Investigations show that a few days ago a girl answering her description called at a local hotel and asked for work, but not obtaining it, left immediately and did not return. That is the last trace of the girl, or anyone that would answer to her description, has been seen.

The girl's one ambition, as ascertained by following what of her trail that has been found, is to obtain work. She is well educated. The Chickasha police are working on the case, and should be notified of any information that might lead to the discovery of the girl's present whereabouts.
